

Certainly! Here's a simple example of an appreciative rejection speech for a proposal:

---

Dear [Name],

I want to express my sincere gratitude for the time and effort you invested in your recent proposal. Your dedication and creativity shine through in every detail, and it's truly commendable.

After careful consideration, we've decided that we won't be moving forward with your proposal at this time. This decision was not easy, given the quality and passion apparent in your work. However, it is important for us to align with our current objectives and resources. Please know that your ideas are valued and respected, and I genuinely look forward to any future opportunities to work together. Thank you once again for your dedication and understanding.

Warm regards,

[Your Name]
