

Certainly, here's a simple example:

---

I understand and appreciate everyone's perspectives on this matter; however, I would like to raise a concern. While I agree that implementing a new policy could bring several benefits, it might also pose some challenges for our team. Perhaps we can explore a phased approach, allowing us to test the waters before fully committing. This way, we can address potential issues early and ensure a smoother transition. Does that sound reasonable to everyone?

---