

Certainly! Here's an example of speech for contest evaluation in an appreciative-feedback tone:

Good afternoon, everyone!

Firstly, I want to extend my heartfelt congratulations to all the speakers today. Each of you brought something unique to the stage and truly made this event memorable.

Sarah, your opening speech was captivating! I was particularly impressed by how you engaged the audience right from the start with your relatable anecdotes. Your confidence shone through, and I loved how you maintained eye contact throughout your speech.

David, your passion for the topic was undeniable. The way you structured your points with clear examples made it easy for us to follow and understand your message. Your persuasive skills are remarkable, and the call-to-action at the end was very compelling.

Emma, the storytelling element in your presentation was fantastic. The vivid imagery you painted allowed us to vividly picture each scene. Your ability to weave emotion into your narrative truly touched the audience. For all speakers, your preparation and dedication were evident and deserve commendation. Remember to work on pacing to ensure your message is delivered clearly and effectively.

Thank you all for sharing your insights and talents with us today. It has been a joy to witness such great speeches. Keep up the excellent work!
