

Ladies and gentlemen, family and friends, and all the toys and teddy bears we'll be stepping over in a few months, Thank you all for gathering today to celebrate the upcoming arrival of the tiniest new member of our family, destined to hold the record for smallest feet and biggest heart!

Now, I was told to keep this speech short, much like the sleep schedule of new parents, so I'll do my best. We're here to shower our dear [Parent's Name] with love, gifts, and unsolicited parenting advice that I'm sure they'll appreciate as much as a 3am diaper change!

Let's be honest, we all know that babies are like little celebrities, and they're about to make [Parent's Name] the proud paparazzi photographer, capturing every sneeze and hiccup like it's headline news. I hope you're ready for a lifetime of stepping on Legos and endless renditions of "Baby Shark".

As we gear up for this wonderful new adventure, let's remember that while babies don't come with a manual, they do come with an endless supply of joy... and dirty laundry.

So, here's to [Parent's Name], may your coffee be strong, your patience long, and may you always remember - the best diaper is the one someone else changes!

Congratulations, we love you, and can't wait to meet the little one who's bound to have us wrapped around their tiny little finger. Cheers!