

Ladies and gentlemen,

If there's one thing we all know, it's that moving into a new house can be as fun as trying to fold a fitted sheet--challenging, confusing, and occasionally making you question all your life choices. But somehow, you did it, and here we are in this beautiful new home!

I must say, this place is fantastic! It has that new house smell, where every room whispers possibilities--and occasionally squeaks like a new pair of sneakers on a basketball court. I've heard this home also comes with state-of-the-art technology, by which I mean windows that actually open and bathrooms that are exclusively yours.

As a token of our congratulations, we brought you a little something.

Now, if there's one thing this housewarming gift will guarantee, it's that you won't have to worry about any pesky burglaries. You're all thinking: "An alarm system? Cameras?" No, it's actually a doormat! With a message saying, "Visitors bring happiness...some by coming, others by leaving." A gentle reminder that, in essence, it's all about balance!

Thank you for having us in your wonderful new abode. May your life here be filled with countless happy memories, never-ending light-hearted laughter, and hopefully very few DIY projects.

Cheers to your new adventure!
