

Good evening, everyone!

First, let's make sure everyone is in the right place! If you were looking for the Underwater Basket Weaving Convention, you're two doors down. But we'd love for you to stay--our banquet has twice the fun and none of the soggy supplies!

I want to thank everyone for showing up tonight. Look around! There are more familiar faces here than there were at my family reunion last year, and the best part is, nobody here is asking me why I'm still single!

Now, I know the most important part of any banquet is the food. I've tasted tonight's entree, and I can assure you it's delicious--well, at least the garnish is. Just kidding, but I'd like to remind you what they always say: If you don't like it, you'll probably at least enjoy taking a great picture of it!

On a more serious note, I want to acknowledge the spirit and hard work of everyone in this room. You're all fantastic, and whether you're an esteemed guest or someone who just wandered in for the free meal, we're really grateful to have you here.

So here's to a night of good company, great laughs, and wonderful memories. Cheers to everyone for making this banquet a night to remember--even if we don't remember much tomorrow morning!

Enjoy the night!
