

Good morning, everyone,

I am delighted to be here today to speak on a topic that holds immense potential for our future: Sustainable Development and the Empowered Youth.

Sustainable development is not just a lofty ideal; it is a necessary framework that ensures our planet's resources are used wisely and responsibly. It is about meeting our present needs without compromising the ability of future generations to meet theirs.

Youth empowerment is critical in this mission. As young people, you are not just the leaders of tomorrow but the active change-makers of today. Your energy, innovation, and passion can drive significant progress toward achieving sustainability goals.

Imagine a world where clean energy is the norm, where biodiversity thrives, and where every community has access to clean water. This vision is possible with the active engagement of young people who are equipped with the right tools, knowledge, and opportunities.

Education plays a vital role in empowerment. By learning about sustainable practices and developing skills in technology, science, and leadership, young people can lead impactful initiatives in their communities.

Moreover, collaboration is key. Partnerships between governments, businesses, and civil society, with youth at the center, can create powerful synergies that accelerate sustainable development efforts. Let's take this opportunity to inspire and be inspired. Let us harness our strengths, share our ideas, and commit to actions that will lead to a sustainable and equitable future for all.

Thank you.