

Ladies and gentlemen, may I have your attention, please? If I could get a word in between bites of cake and sips of champagne, that would be wonderful!

For those who don't know me, I'm [Your Name], the best man/maid of honor, or as I like to call it, the person who gets to roast the groom/bride for free. But don't worry, I'll keep it PG--mostly because my mom is here and she won't hesitate to throw a shoe at me if I step out of line.

Now, I've known [Groom/Bride] for years, which means I've had the privilege--and sometimes the misfortune--of seeing them in all their glory. From questionable haircut choices in high school to dancing like nobody's watching--mostly because nobody should be watching. But today, I get to see [Groom/Bride] in their finest moment: marrying the love of their life, [Bride/Groom].

And I must say, [Bride/Groom], you look absolutely stunning, and [Groom/Bride], you've never looked better. Love really does wonders, doesn't it? [Groom/Bride] actually did the dishes last week without being asked, so miracles do happen.

But in all seriousness, the love these two share is as deep as their obsession with Netflix series. They laugh together, support each other, and they both share a mutual love for pizza on the couch--a match made in heaven!

So let's raise our glasses to [Groom] and [Bride]. May your life together be filled with love, laughter, and a lifetime supply of chips and salsa. Here's to a wonderful future, the best adventures, and plenty of happiness. Cheers!
