

Ladies and gentlemen,

Thank you for gathering here today to celebrate the birthday of my best friend, [Friend's Name]. It's amazing to see how many people showed up. Honestly, I was a bit worried it'd just be me, [Friend's Favorite Snack], and their cat.

You know, they say that friends are like good bras: supportive, never leave you hanging, and always close to your heart. Well, in this case, I must say, [Friend's Name] is my favorite bra... wait, that came out wrong. What I meant to say is, you've always been there to lift me up, buddy!

I remember the first time we met, I thought "[Friend's Name] looks like trouble," and boy, was I right! From misadventures in trying to cook edible meals to deciphering IKEA instructions, we've had quite the ride. Who knew we'd live to tell the tale of the epic 'pasta disaster of 2015'? On a serious note, [Friend's Name], thank you for always being you--especially on days when I couldn't be me without your support. To many more years of friendship, laughter, and adventures!

Happy birthday, you magnificent human. May your year be as fantastic and quirky as you are!

Thank you, everyone, for being here. Now, let's eat cake before I make any more clothing analogies! Cheers!
