

Ladies and gentlemen,

Today, we stand on the brink of greatness. Each one of you has poured your heart and soul into this journey, overcoming every obstacle with courage and determination. This moment right here is a testament to your unwavering perseverance and resilience.

Every setback was a setup for a comeback. Every challenge, an opportunity to grow stronger and smarter. Remember those early mornings and late nights dedicated to pushing your limits--we did it to stand where we are right now.

As we step onto the field today, remember it's not just about the talent, but the hard work and dedication that got us here. No matter the outcome, you have already won by showing up, fighting for every inch, and never backing down.

Let's play with heart, leave everything on the field, and make this moment ours. Believe in yourselves, believe in each other, and let's show the world what perseverance and resilience look like.

Let's go out there and seize our destiny!

Thank you.