

Ladies and gentlemen, gather around, gather around!

First off, I must ask--are we sure we want to let [Name] escape? I mean, have we checked if the door is locked properly? Just saying!

But seriously, today we bid farewell to a true gem, a master of multitasking, and the only person I know who can drink three cups of coffee before 9 a.m. without breaking a sweat.

[Name], your ability to turn even the most chaotic of situations into a well-rehearsed comedy act is something we all will sorely miss. Who else is going to keep us entertained with stories of 'That Time I...' at the water cooler?

You've been a mentor, a friend, and occasionally, the person who reminds us that it's okay to laugh at ourselves when the world seems like a circus. Spoiler alert: it always does!

As you embark on this new journey, remember to take us with you--not literally, of course, unless you have a very large suitcase. We know you'll shine anywhere you go, because you light up rooms and occasionally, set off the fire alarms with your bright ideas.

So let's raise a glass--here's to [Name]. May your next chapter be as fulfilling and fabulous as your time here has been for us. And remember, you can always come back and visit, but we still won't let you win at karaoke night!

Cheers!