

Certainly! Here's a simple example of a speech in an emotional, fatherly tone for an engagement:

Ladies and gentlemen,

Firstly, I want to thank everyone for joining us on this joyous occasion. As a father, this moment is incredibly special to me, and I am filled with immense pride and happiness.

Today, we celebrate the engagement of my dear child, [Name], and their wonderful partner, [Partner's Name]. Seeing the love and commitment they share is truly heartwarming, and it fills my heart with immense joy. Watching [Name] grow and now embark on this new chapter is a heartening experience for me, and I have every confidence that they will create a life full of happiness and love together.

[Name], you have grown into such a remarkable person, and I am so proud of all that you've achieved. [Partner's Name], we are thrilled to welcome you into our family. It's clear that you both bring out the best in each other, and I can see a bright future ahead for you.

Remember, love is a journey that requires understanding, patience, and unwavering support. Cherish each moment you share, and always strive to be there for one another.

Let us all raise a glass to [Name] and [Partner's Name], to a lifetime of happiness, love, and harmony. May your days be filled with joy and your home full of laughter.

Congratulations to the both of you!

Cheers!
