

Ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, esteemed guests, and anyone who just wandered in for the free cake--welcome! Today, we gather to celebrate the miraculous occasion of [Name] surviving another trip around the sun. Yes, folks, [Name] has aged like a fine wine--unless, of course, you prefer boxed wine--then they've aged like a fine... soda pop. Now, [Name], it's your special day, and you look fantastic. Truly, you don't look a day over whatever age you've decided to be this year. And remember, age is just a number--a really large, constantly increasing, slightly alarming number.

We've gathered here not just to eat cake and take awkward photos, but to celebrate you, [Name]. You have the distinct honor of being the most incredible, charismatic, and maybe slightly forgetful person in this room. Don't worry; we still love you even if you occasionally lose your keys and can't remember where you've left your phone--it's probably under your chair.

Here's to you, [Name]! May your birthday be as amazing as you pretend your life is on social media. May your year be full of joy, laughter, and minimal trips to the doctor.

Let's raise a glass (or any beverage you have nearby) to [Name]--may your day be filled with love, laughs, and a responsible amount of aging. Cheers!
