

Ladies and gentlemen,

Wow, what a turnout tonight! I just want to take a moment to say a few words as we gather to celebrate this incredible chapter we've shared together. First off, thank you all for being here. It means the world to me.

Throughout the time we've spent together, we've managed to accomplish some pretty amazing things. From late nights tackling projects to those coffee-fueled mornings where we barely kept our eyes open, it's all been part of an unforgettable journey.

As I move on to the next adventure, I carry with me countless memories and, most importantly, friendships that I hope last a lifetime. We've laughed, learned, and maybe even cried a bit along the way, and those moments have shaped who I am today.

I have to give a shout-out to each of you. Your support, your encouragement, and sometimes just your hilarious stories made every day a lot brighter.

Let's not make this goodbye but rather see you later. I hope we cross paths again, and until then, stay awesome and keep in touch! Here's to new beginnings and all the wonders they bring.

Thank you all once again for everything! Cheers!