

Good morning, future nurses,

Today, I stand before you not just to address you, but to remind you of the incredible journey you've embarked on. Nursing is not just a profession; it's a calling. It requires determination and relentless perseverance.

As you move forward in this path, remember, every challenge is an opportunity to learn and grow. There will be long nights, moments of doubt, and times when you feel overwhelmed. But it is in these moments that your true strength will emerge.

Persevere with compassion. Be determined in your pursuit of excellence. Each patient you care for is a testament to your dedication and resilience.

Never forget why you started this journey. Hold onto that passion. And as you face the trials ahead, know that you have the power to make a difference in countless lives. Stand firm, persevere, and remain determined.

Thank you.
