

Ladies and gentlemen, fellow activists, and future leaders,
Today, we stand united with a single purpose - to demand action for our planet. Climate change is not a distant threat; it is here, and it affects us all. We, the youth, are the voices of change, the strength of hope, and the architects of a sustainable future.
Our message is simple: the time for action is now. We are not just fighting for our future, but for the future of generations to come. We demand immediate, concrete steps from those in power to reduce emissions, embrace renewable energy, and protect our precious ecosystems.
We believe in the power of collective action. Together, we can move mountains, turn the tide, and create a world where people and nature live in harmony. Our voices cannot be silenced, for they are the voices of truth, justice, and determination.
Let us march forward with courage and conviction, knowing that together, we can ignite the change our planet so desperately needs. Thank you.
