

Ladies and gentlemen, friends and allies,
We stand here today united in our shared belief in justice, equality, and the unyielding power of solidarity. We gather not as individuals, but as a collective force determined to pave a brighter future. Our voices, though varied, come together in harmony, resonating with the same call for change. United, we cannot be silenced. United, we will not be ignored. Today, we reaffirm our commitment to lifting each other up, to listening and learning from one another. Let us remember that strength lies in unity. No matter the challenges, together we are unstoppable. Together, we hold the power to create the world we wish to see--one of compassion, respect, and dignity for all. So let us march forward, hand in hand. In unity, we will achieve what we set out to do. Thank you.
