

Ladies and gentlemen, brothers and sisters,
We gather here today under a banner of resilience and determination. In the face of conflict, we stand firm and united, raising our voices for peace. War has been a shadow cast over too many dreams, a thief of hope and a creator of sorrow. But in our hearts, we hold the power to change this narrative.
We are determined to build bridges, not burn them; to foster understanding, not division. Our strength lies in our unity, and today, we recommit to this cause with unwavering resolve.
Let us carry this spirit forward, inspire others, and make our message clear: The world deserves peace, and we are here to demand it--undaunted, unbreakable, and unstoppable. Together, we will prevail.
Thank you.