

Ladies and gentlemen, fellow artists, and advocates of freedom,
We gather here today united by a common cause: the preservation and celebration of artistic freedom of speech. Art is the language of the soul, a universal dialogue that transcends boundaries, cultures, and beliefs. It is through art that we express our deepest truths and inspire change.

Today, we stand not only for our rights but for the rights of those who have been silenced or suppressed. We raise our voices for the painters, the poets, the musicians, the filmmakers, and every creator whose voice deserves to be heard.

Artistic freedom is not just a privilege; it is a fundamental human right. It fuels creativity, fosters innovation, and allows societies to thrive and reflect. When creativity is stifled, the very essence of our humanity is at risk.

Let us join together peacefully, yet resolutely, to demand that artists everywhere be allowed to express their visions without fear. Let us remind the world that a society rich in diverse voices is one that flourishes.

Today, as we march, hold your signs high, sing your songs, make your statement, and let us create a chorus of unity that cannot be ignored. Together, let us paint a future where artistic freedom shines brightly for all.

Thank you.
