

Ladies and gentlemen,

We gather here today in silence, yet our message is loud and clear. We march to honor the right to free expression, a fundamental pillar of any free society. Though our footsteps make no sound, they echo the voices of those who cannot speak freely.

Let's stand together, side by side, to demand that everyone's right to express their thoughts, beliefs, and ideas is respected and protected. Our silence amplifies our conviction and unity.

Thank you for being here and for standing up for freedom. Let our march serve as a powerful reminder that silence is not the absence of speech, but a profound statement for change.

Thank you.
