

Ladies and gentlemen,

We gather here today at a crucial moment in our history. Our voting rights are not just words on paper; they are the very foundation of our democracy! Yet, these rights are under threat, and we cannot remain silent.

We stand here to demand action, not tomorrow, but today. We need laws that protect every citizen's right to vote, regardless of their background or where they live. We must ensure that every voice is heard and every vote is counted.

Our ancestors fought, marched, and bled for these rights. We cannot let their sacrifices be in vain. It is our duty to stand up, speak out, and demand justice now!

So, let us raise our voices and say: No more obstacles! No more suppression! Equal voting rights for all! We will not wait; we demand change today!

Thank you.
