

Hey team,

I know today didn't go the way we wanted. It's tough, and it's okay to feel disappointed. But remember, losing this game doesn't define us. Each one of you gave your best, and that's what matters most.

We learn more from our setbacks than our successes. Let's use this experience to fuel our drive, to work harder, to come back stronger. I believe in each of you and in our ability to rise above this.

Let's stick together, support each other, and keep pushing forward. Our journey doesn't end here; it's just getting started. Keep your heads up.

We've got this!

Let's go, team!
