

Ladies and gentlemen, family and friends, if I could have your attention, please, as I attempt the impossible - making a toast that's shorter than Uncle Bob's fishing stories!

First and foremost, I'd like to thank everyone for showing up today - or in some cases, getting lost only twice on the way here. It's great to see that the gene for good looks is as strong as ever, though I do spot a little more gray hair than last year... and that's just on the kids!

But seriously, it's truly wonderful to gather with all of you today, even if it means squeezing more people into one room than a phone booth.

Remember those? Ask your parents, kids.

Let's take a moment to appreciate our amazing hosts for bringing us all together. And a special thanks to whoever made the potato salad--it's so good that I'm seriously considering leaving room for it next to the ice cream.

So here's to laughter, love, and the occasional awkward family photo. And to the hope that by the next reunion, the younger generation will have finally figured out the Wi-Fi password. Cheers!
