

Ladies and gentlemen, esteemed judges, and honorable audience,
Today, we gather to debate a fundamental issue of our time: the balance between internet freedom and online protection. On the one hand, internet freedom empowers individuals by providing access to a vast world of information, fostering innovation, and enabling free expression. It connects people across the globe, breaking barriers and nurturing creativity.

On the other hand, the need for protection cannot be overlooked. As we venture into the digital realm, we face challenges such as cyberbullying, privacy invasions, and misinformation. Protection ensures a safer online environment, shielding individuals and communities from harm while maintaining trust in the digital ecosystem.

As we embark on this debate, let us consider how to find harmony between these two vital facets of the internet, ensuring that we uphold freedom while implementing safeguards that protect us all. Thank you.
