

Ladies and gentlemen, can I have your attention, please? No, really, can I have it? Because at this age, it feels like someone always forgets something, and I just hope it's not their hearing aids tonight!

We're here today to celebrate a truly special person, [Name]. Now, [Name] has reached a glorious age. We're not saying they're old, but if they were milk, they'd definitely be cheese by now!

Ah, [Name], it seems just yesterday we were all making fun of your fashion sense and questionable hairstyle choices. Oh wait, that was actually yesterday! The only difference now is your shoes are a bit more orthopedic and your hairstyle is less... let's say, adventurous.

Remember the good old days? Back when phones had cords and a "stream" was just something you fished in? [Name] has been through it all! From black-and-white TVs to crying when they see a "low battery" sign on their smartphone. Classic!

But in all seriousness, [Name], you've aged like a fine wine... or is it more like a vintage car? Either way, you're irreplaceable. Your humor, your warmth, and your ability to remember everyone's embarrassing moments except your own are truly unmatched.

To [Name], may your Facebook notifications be as plentiful as your laughs and may your Wi-Fi always be strong enough to stream all your favorite shows without buffering. Let's raise our glasses to more delightful years of stories, laughter, and finding your glasses every morning.

Happy Birthday, [Name]! Cheers!
