

Certainly! Here's a simple example of a speech for internal mobility:

---

Good afternoon, everyone,

I am excited to talk to you today about the incredible opportunities ahead within our organization. As we continue to grow and innovate, internal mobility is a key pillar of our strategy for the future. We have always believed that our most valuable asset is our people. Therefore, we are committed to creating pathways for each of you to explore new roles, develop new skills, and take on new challenges right here at our company.

For those of you looking to advance your careers, there are numerous opportunities to move laterally into different departments or pursue upward trajectories. We encourage you to take charge of your career by leveraging our training programs, mentorship initiatives, and cross-functional projects. These resources are designed to equip you with the tools and knowledge needed for your next role.

We are also rolling out a new internal job board to make it easier for you to find and apply for positions that align with your career aspirations. Our HR team is always available to support you in navigating these opportunities and planning your career path.

Looking ahead, I am confident that by fostering internal mobility, we will not only enhance our collective capabilities but also build a dynamic and agile workforce prepared to meet the challenges of tomorrow. Let's continue to support each other in our journeys and drive our company forward.

Thank you all for your hard work and dedication.

---

This speech emphasizes the importance of internal mobility and encourages employees to take proactive steps in their career development while outlining available resources.