

Ladies and Gentlemen,

What a sight it is to see all these familiar faces again! It's not every day that we get to emerge from our little cubicles and bask in each other's glory with actual human contact - no screen in between!

Who would have thought we could take a break from downloading yet another Zoom update to make it to this wondrous team reunion? If only we could download a sense of direction to find where my sense of humor went during those tedious meetings!

Honestly, it's great to see everyone back together - especially after surviving endless calendar invites and email threads that seemed to have been conceived in a labyrinth. Let's give a round of applause for simply knowing what day it is without a reminder, shall we?

Remember when last year we thought dressing business casual was slipping into a fancy pajama top? Those were some wild times, my friends. But look at us now: we've upgraded to full outfits! For some of us, even with matching socks!

But in all seriousness, seeing all of you here, happy and healthy, is really something special. Cheers to the amazing teamwork, helping each other through thick and thin, and maybe, just maybe, finding new ways to pretend we understood that last spreadsheet report.

So let's enjoy ourselves, reconnect, and create some more unforgettable memories. And if you need help remembering later, don't worry - we have a whole team for that!

Thanks for making it here, and let's have a fantastic time!
