

(Setting: A quiet beach during sunset)

You take a deep breath, holding his hands gently.

"Hey love, you know, we've had so many incredible moments together--like this one, right here. Being with you makes my heart feel like it's home, and my life is brighter and warmer with you in it.

I never imagined I'd find someone who makes me laugh until I cry, listens with such care, and loves so deeply. You're my best friend, my greatest supporter, and my favorite person in the entire world.

So, under this beautiful sky and with the ocean as our witness, I have something I want to ask you.

You reach into your pocket, pulling out a small box.

Would you let me love you and stand by you, not just today, but forever?

Will you marry me?