

Ladies and gentlemen,

Today, standing before you, we celebrate love, unity, and the shared responsibility we all have towards our planet. As a same-sex couple, we know that at the heart of every strong relationship lies understanding and care. This same principle applies to how we treat our environment. Imagine a future where love for each other transcends into love for the earth. By adopting sustainable practices, like reducing waste and conserving energy, we can ensure that our planet remains a thriving home for generations to come. Simple actions, whether it's choosing eco-friendly products or supporting local, sustainable businesses, can lead to profound impacts.

Let us lead by example, using our love to nurture both our relationships and the world around us. Together, we can forge a path of kindness, inclusivity, and environmental stewardship. In doing so, we not only build a better future for ourselves but for everyone. Thank you.