

My Love,

I stand before you, not with the miles that separate us, but with the love that binds our hearts closer than ever. Each day, although we may be apart, my thoughts find their way to you, weaving dreams and hopes of a future together.

The distance has taught me patience and deepened my appreciation for every moment we share. We've written our own story, one of resilience and unwavering commitment. It's this journey that has shown me your strength, your love, and the beautiful person you are.

I believe in us, in the magic of our connection, no matter the distance. So today, I ask you, will you marry me? Will you join me in closing the gap, not just in miles, but in life and eternity? Let us turn this love into a promise, and our promise into forever.

I love you, now and always.
