

Ladies and gentlemen of the committee,

I stand before you today with a heavy heart, aware of the serious nature of the situation at hand. I want to express my sincerest apologies for any distress or concern that my actions may have caused. It was never my intention to undermine the integrity of our academic community.

In hindsight, I realize that there may have been errors in my judgment, stemming from a misunderstanding of citation protocols. I deeply regret any oversight and want to make it clear that it was a mistake, not an act of dishonesty. I am committed to rectifying this and ensuring it never happens again.

I am grateful for the opportunity to address this matter directly and hope for your compassion and understanding. Please allow me the chance to prove my dedication to upholding the values we all hold dear in our educational pursuits.

Thank you for considering my appeal.