

Ladies and gentlemen,

If I could have your attention for a moment, I'd like to say a few words about my beloved daughter on this wonderful occasion. Today, I am not only filled with immense joy but also an overwhelming sense of pride. From the moment she was born, our family values of love, kindness, and respect have been the guiding principles in her life. She has always displayed a tremendous capacity for caring and has shown kindness to everyone she meets. Her respect for others is a testament to the values we've cherished as a family.

We have always believed in the strength of family, and today, we are thrilled to witness her starting her own. To my daughter and her new husband, I encourage you to embrace these same values as you embark on this beautiful journey together. Remember that love, kindness, and respect are the foundation on which a strong marriage is built.

As you stand before us, surrounded by family and friends who cherish you, know that you have our unwavering support and love. We're here for you every step of the way.

Raise your glasses with me. Here's to a lifetime of happiness, a home filled with love, and a journey that honors the values we hold dear. To my daughter and her husband, congratulations!

Thank you.
