

Certainly! Here's a simple example of a clarification speech for an interview in an articulate tone:

---

"Thank you for that question. To ensure I provide the most accurate response, could I clarify a few details? When you mentioned 'project outcomes,' are you referring to the specific metrics used to measure success, or the overall strategic impact on the organization? Understanding this will help me tailor my answer more precisely to your expectations."

---

This speech demonstrates an articulate and professional approach to seeking clarification during an interview.