

Ladies and gentlemen, students, teachers, and staff,
Today, we gather here as a school community united by the spirit of understanding and healing. Over recent times, we have faced challenges and differences that tested our bonds. Yet, it is in these moments of conflict that we find the greatest opportunities for growth and unity. Let us acknowledge the feelings and concerns that have arisen, understanding that each voice matters and contributes to our vibrant community. We are here to listen, to learn, and to move forward together with respect and empathy.
Healing begins with open hearts and minds. I invite everyone to come together--to share your thoughts and to hear those of others with kindness and an intent to understand. Let us commit to constructive dialogue where each voice is heard and valued.
As we take these steps towards reconciliation, let us also focus on our shared goals: a safe, inclusive, and nurturing environment for learning and growth. We are stronger together, and each of you plays a vital role in that strength.
Thank you for your courage, your patience, and your commitment to our community. Together, we will build a future that is brighter and more connected for everyone.
Thank you.
