

Good evening, everyone.

Thank you all for being here today as we gather with open hearts and minds. We are here because we believe in a future where understanding and harmony prevail. We are here to plant the seeds of peace, hoping they will grow strong and resilient.

Each of us comes from different backgrounds, experiences, and stories. Yet, it is this diversity that can be our greatest strength. Together, we can turn our differences into opportunities for learning and growth. Reconciliation begins with small acts of kindness and small steps towards understanding one another. It is listening with empathy, speaking with respect, and acting with compassion. Let us reach out to one another, setting aside our differences to find common ground.

As young people, we hold the power to shape tomorrow. By nurturing peace and reconciliation, we build a legacy that future generations will carry forward. Let us be the change we wish to see in the world.

With unity, we can overcome any challenge. With hope, we can create lasting peace. And with love, we can inspire others to join us on this journey of reconciliation.

Thank you for your commitment to peace, for your courage to forgive, and for your vision of a brighter future. Together, let's make it happen.

Thank you.
